OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Romance, Limited

There's no doubt about it—Sally Long was born early, went late. She just didn't belong in this man-of-the-world whirligig world of today, stripped of romanticism and chivalry. No indeed, she would have been much happier way back when men were understanding in their gallantry toward women.

Swing music wearied her—how soothing the strains of strings and flute must have been! Jurgensburg appears her, ah, the mother of Sally's love history. At least that part which dealt with famous women and the attentions showered upon them by their lovers. Du Barry... Mrs. Merton... Mrs. Lady Hamilton... She knew them all... she envied them.

Alex, a young plumber, had asked Sally to marry him, but Sally could not bring herself to yes. And one hardly blushed her!

Then fate took a hand. Sally met Armand Delacruz, reeking with Shakespeare and poetic phrases, both on the stage and off. The stage! Well... the little comedy theatre.

"Fie on this, my stupid tongue, which knows no better word than 'charmed'!" It's actually what he said under his breath, the moment he laid eyes on page forty-three, but it clicked with Sally. And the deep courteous bow that went with it... Oh, boy!

He walked home with her. She thought him a bit odd, but liked every word and gesture, and this Armand had plenty on the ball. He left her at her door, fumbling, rolling out, "This is odd, I know, but... believe me, I kissed her hand with a great and dignified flourish. Sally went down for the third strike.

In bed that night, after she'd thanked God for sending Armand into her life, Sally lay awake, her eye cutting a wide swath in the court of Elizabeth... garbed in flowing scarlet cape, embroidered satins, draped tights, clinging sword, Coriolanus' hair, and her luscious Vandyke beard. The beard she shaved off instantly... it didn't become him.

But when she saw him the next night, she lay awake, still wearing the same shiny taffeta. He didn't mind because he took her to an inexpensive little Italian restaurant, where she learned about... a jug of wine and meat. Nowhere in this wide, wide world could Armand have found a better audience than Sally.

The night she gave her a load of the Indian love lyrics, she still wore the same shiny taffeta. He'd just rested the cars when he said... whether you drifted down my way... on the great sad river of chance and change, you shall say no.

The boat was disturbed by a motor a launch filled with squealing youngsters, and when Armand had successfully dodged it, he turned to Sally, "Take what the gods may give."

Sally couldn't wait until morning to tell her mother that Armand had at long last expressed his love for her... undeniably. "Mother... Mother..." she said after waiting her, "he's so good... so romantic."

"That's fine. Go to bed," said her mother.

"Mother... he's so grand... so romantic! I think... I think he's going to ask me to marry him!"

Money And Greatness

Jack Miner, Canadian Naturalist, Let A Small Estate Thrive

The impression prevails that in order to have influence and fame, a man must be in possession of wealth—the more money he has, the greater, and more extended, his reputation as a man of size.

But this theory is completely blasted by the probate of the will of the late Jack Miner. This famous Kingbird naturalist's total estate consisted of real estate valued at $10,500, being the Government valuation of his farm in connection with his bird sanctuary which is owned by the Jack Miner Foundation.

On the other hand, the effects of personal belongings, cash in hand, and a small insurance policy.

"An old fellow at forty," her mother replied, "hasn't he?" "I'm sorry," she shamed, "What has that to do with me?"

"Nothing, I guess. But what about Alex? He's a fine boy."

"He's just a plumber... so unromantic."

"Unromantic at eight or nine dollars a day?"

"I know, Mother, but it's not really money that counts. It's romance."

"It's in his heart," her mother opined quickly. "What does this Armand do for a living?"

"He's an actor... he's marvelous if someone would give him a chance." She stopped, then added holding up a spool in Julius Caesar.

"Actor... hmnn," said her mother.

"He says such lovely things."

"Did you ever try eating lovely things?"

"Mother, you're so... so twentieth century. No one understands my temperament."

With that Sally stomped off to bed.

She was eighteen, and when she left her room, she'd said yes, even if her mother did not approve.

That was settled.

Erol Flynn would have turned green with envy of Sally's dream that night and seen Armand's Robin Hood.

"Don't do anything foolish, Sally dear," cautioned her mother, as Sally left him, holding him tight.

"—If we but could find a world apart... and leave this noisy town behind, to hear the beating of our hearts." That was the way he greeted her. Honesty. He made it up himself, that one.

"How about the park, Armand?" Sally cooed. To herself she said "I knew it... I knew it... he's going to ask me."

Russia Has Good Idea

Is Giving Peas to Generals Instead Of Cash Awards

The New York Herald Tribune says: Great Britain in past years has granted pensions and cash awards to its military leaders.

The total cash grants to the Duke of Wellington came to more than $1,000,000, not including an annual $10,000 pension to General Douglas Haig, received on an estate, and an "appraisal" of $500,000 in cash.

A new wrinkle was devised in Moscow where there is an acute housing shortage. Apartments in choice sections of the city for the generals who beat the German Army on the eastern front.

At the St. Petersburg at the Peace River an event was the wedding on horseback which united Miss Norine Burton and Melvin Stewart both of North Vancouver. In up years but now living in modest surroundings, the couple had a shaking up, and were almost ready for a shake-down by a night after being struck by passenger train at Kamloops, B.C. He was thrown clear by an engine; completely naked, he was wounded by Marlon Long, R.C.A., O.S.A.; newspaper friends in Class "A" Weeklies of Canada with an oil painting by Herbert Palmer, R.C.A., O.S.A.

Yes, the West is tackling the job largely through the thorough and well-planned projects conducted by the Departments of Agriculture of the several Provincial Governments and University extension work.

Golf Club, State Club, Boys' latest competitions, women's and girls' Home-makers Club work, Kitchen Improvement competitions and other courses and projects, now find fulfillment in prize-winning sales of agricultural products, new ways for the young'sters' study and work. And greatest reward of all, the wide extension of learning and knowledge to all who participated.

To planners and leaders, teachers and students and club members, EATON'S extends its hearty congratulations on their work and attainments, and hopes to have the privilege in each succeeding year of continuing to help in this winning of the West to a new and greater future.

Rationing helps the FARMER HERE'S HOW!

- Rationing assures everyone a fair share of scarce foods. Without rationing, farmers might get all the butter they need; they might not get sugar. City dwellers might get sugar but no butter.
- Rationing helps to keep prices steady.
- Rationing has assured farmers sufficient ammunition to protect their crops and livestock.
- Rationing makes it possible for farmers to get coupons to feed harvesters and other transient farm workers.

The FARMER helps Rationing HERE'S HOW!

- By collecting and turning in the coupons acquired against the use and sale of butter and the sale of honey and rationed maple products.
- By writing to the Local Ration Boards for application form RB-77 as soon as they know definitely that transient labour rations will be needed to feed extra help hired for periods of less than two weeks.

Rationing is not intended to add unnecessarily to the burden of Canadian farmers who, faced with shortages of labour, materials and machinery, have continued to respond to repeated calls for greater production.

It is a protection against waste, shortages, inflation.

Well informed farmers are glad to acknowledge their debt to the government in the war effort. They know that improved varieties of crop plants and methods for protecting plants and animals from disease, insects and vermin are being developed through the work of scientifically trained men. By far the largest, though not necessarily the most important, of these scientific agriculturists are in government departments.

Each case from fair treatment, two considerations merit the immediate attention of farmers. In the first place, the men on our farms have received very attractive offers from the United States. These offers will probably increase. In the second place, our men will accept as "exit permits" becoming available. Good-bye to our men.

The second consideration is this. Students must decide early in their university careers what type of work they want to do. If they can't find that six to eight years of university training in agricultural science can be converted into a reward with a salary little better than that demanded by unskilled labour, they will turn to something else. If this is true, we must expect to continue to find first-class talent for third-class pay.

Radiobiography, the science of examining the internal structure of metals and other solid objects by the use of X-rays or Gamma-rays, has found a wide application in foundries and other Canadian war plants.

WAR DOLLARS

DO THREE ESSENTIAL JOBS:

1. HELP CARRY ON THE WAR—

Every possible dollar will be needed to bring the war to a successful conclusion. THE THEREFORE, every dollar you lend enables you to play a vital part in the great fight for freedom.

2. CURB WASTEFUL SPENDING—

To retard spiralling prices and rises in the cost of living income must be diverted from unwise purchases and made available for war use. WAR SAVINGS mean money put aside to aid essential war production.

3. PROVIDE A NEST EGG—

Following every major war, there is a period of economic re-adjustment. The man who has taken his share of WAR SAVINGS will find this money very useful during this transition period.
